

Twenty to One

MARKETS

We read the finance newsletters. You read this.

10 newsletters 18 issues → 1 6-min read 0 ads

READ FOR THIS ISSUE		EACH STORY SHOWS WHICH OF THESE COVERED IT
☒ Snacks	☒ Axios Markets	☒ EntryPoint	☒ The Daily Upside	☒ The Hustle
☒ Finks Daily	☒ Brew Markets	☒ Money Stuff	☒ Businessweek Daily	☒ Semafor Business

NUMBER OF THE DAY

29,000

Jobs added in September, against roughly 84,000 expected. Revisions erased another 60,000. Wall Street cheered: odds that the Fed holds rates in October jumped to 77.3%.

Brew Markets · Bloomberg Businessweek

- 1 The bond market's scariest moment in 24 years, read three ways.
- 2 A jobs report so weak it counted as good news.
- 3 Anthropic's $2 trillion IPO: buy the scarcity, or fear the drain?

THE CLOSE
FRIDAY	CLOSE	LEVEL	DAY
S&P 500		7,722.94	▲ 0.74%
Nasdaq		27,190.86	▲ 1.19%
Dow		51,177.44	▲ 0.49%
10-yr Treasury		5.277%	+4.0 bps
Bitcoin		$84,327.58	▼ 0.33%
Oil		$91.47	▼ 1.51%

Levels via Brew Markets. The Nasdaq hit an intraday record. The 30-year mortgage rate is 7.28%, up from 7.03% (Freddie Mac, via Axios Markets).

▲ UP	▼ DOWN
HPE Long-term AI and data-center targets impressed. +7.35%	Western Digital Toshiba reportedly doubling AI hard-drive capacity. Seagate fell 10.21%. -10.22%
SpaceX Three successful launches. +7.35%	Nike Falling revenue, weak guidance, more layoffs. -3.64%
Tesla Q3 deliveries beat expectations. +4.65%	Rivian Deliveries jumped 46%, but it only held its outlook. -3.12%
Nvidia Record high: a $5.7T market cap. +1.34%

Movers and reasons via Brew Markets.

THE BIG ONE 8 of 10 newsletters 2-min read

The bond market hit its scariest level since 2002. Then it blinked.

SO WHAT A 10-year yield near 5.3% now sets the price of everything: mortgages, stock valuations and the Fed's next move. The newsletters can't agree whether it's a warning or a bargain.

The 10-year Treasury yield touched 5.34% on Thursday morning, a 24-year high. It eased back to about 5.24% at the close as soft manufacturing data and two Fed vice chairs signaling patience pulled buyers back in, then ended Friday at 5.277%. The 10-year just posted its biggest quarterly jump since 1994, and the 30-year mortgage rate climbed to 7.28%. It's not just America: UK 30-year yields hit their highest since 1998.

READING 1	READING 2	READING 3
It feeds itself Hedge funds and mortgage REITs have flipped from buyers to sellers. Mortgage-bond holders re-hedge by selling Treasuries, which Barclays calls the main driver. Higher rates may stick. Axios Markets	It's a haven again Next to France and the UK, Treasuries look safe. Managers are steering clients back to 60/40, and retail just poured record money into long-bond ETFs. The Daily Upside	Watch the leaders If yields fall, the trade that powered the megacaps could reverse. BTIG's Jonathan Krinsky argues QQQ and the Magnificent Seven could actually drop. EntryPoint

Read the original: Freddie Mac's rate release · Axios on the yield curve

FROM Axios Markets The Daily Upside EntryPoint Brew Markets Businessweek Money Stuff Semafor Business Finks Daily

MACRO 7 of 10 newsletters 1-min read SOURCES DIFFER

A jobs report so weak the market loved it

SO WHAT Bad news for workers turned into good news for investors: September's miss all but took an October rate hike off the table.

Payrolls rose just 29,000, unemployment ticked up to 4.2% and annual wage growth slowed to 3%, its lowest in five years. Healthcare (+17,000) led; government (−17,000) and temp help (−11,000) shrank. Odds of an October hold jumped to 77.3%, a week after markets priced about 70% odds of a hike. Jefferies' Thomas Simons called the report the nail in the coffin for an October move. A December hike is still priced at 66.7%, and earlier in the week August's PCE inflation came in cooler than expected at 3.4%.

Sources differ on the forecast: Brew Markets used an 84,000 consensus; EntryPoint's preview said 90,000. Next Fed meeting: Oct. 27-28.

FROM Brew Markets The Daily Upside EntryPoint Finks Daily Businessweek Snacks Axios Markets

THE SPLIT 4 of 10 newsletters 2-min read REPORTED

Anthropic wants to list before Thanksgiving, at up to $2 trillion

SO WHAT It would be the first way to own a frontier AI lab directly, and that scarcity is exactly what the bulls and bears are fighting over.

Bloomberg reports Anthropic is targeting a listing as soon as the week of Nov. 9, at a valuation of $1.8 trillion to $2 trillion. Its prospectus, reported by Reuters, shows 2025 revenue up 12x to $4.6 billion, a $42 billion net loss including writedowns, $7.33 billion spent on compute (more than half its operating costs) and plans to spend $518 billion on cloud. The bar to beat: SpaceX listed in June at about $1.8 trillion.

SIDE A	SIDE B
Scarcity wins Private AI labs keep wiping value off public sectors (trucking, cyber, SaaS, consulting) with nothing public to buy on the other side. Finally owning the winner may make investors overlook the valuation. Snacks	The drain When SpaceX listed, BofA found that funds buying it sold Microsoft, Apple and Amazon. An Anthropic IPO could speed up selling in this year's losers and in stocks tied to Anthropic. EntryPoint

Disclosure: Snacks and EntryPoint are published by Robinhood's Sherwood Media.

Read the original: Reuters on the prospectus

FROM Snacks EntryPoint The Daily Upside Brew Markets

EVERYTHING ELSE THAT MATTERED

5 of 10 SOURCES DIFFER

Paramount-Warner Bros. closes Tuesday, and the bonds already hurt

A judge approved the settlement. The deal should close Oct. 6, with the company renamed Skydance. Within hours of trading, buyers of the record $52 billion in deal debt were nursing losses, and Paramount fell 9.6% Thursday. The deal's size is $81B per Brew Markets and $110B per Businessweek, probably equity value versus the total including debt.

Businessweek · Semafor Business · Brew Markets · Money Stuff · Finks Daily · 1 min · Semafor on the debt

4 of 10

AI is creating consulting work, not killing it

Accenture jumped 15.8%, its best day ever, on EPS of $3.29 and revenue of $18.68B versus $3.18 and $18.03B expected. It has a record 141 clients with $100M+ contracts, and nearly 100 more began advanced-AI work this quarter. It's still down about a fifth this year.

Brew Markets · The Daily Upside · Finks Daily · Snacks · 1 min

4 of 10

Mattel lost its CEO, then got a bid

CEO Ynon Kreiz left to co-run the merged Paramount-Warner Bros. (stock −4.2%). A day later shares jumped 18.8% on reports that Authentic Brands, which owns Elvis and Marilyn Monroe likeness rights, discussed a $6B+ offer.

Finks Daily · Semafor Business · Brew Markets · The Daily Upside · 30 sec · Semafor

4 of 10

The war premium, in one week

Oil hit $93.29 Thursday as the US sent a third aircraft-carrier strike group, then slipped to $91.47 after G7 nations agreed to release up to 100 million barrels of emergency oil and diesel. Diesel slipped $6.50 a gallon in September, and one Colorado farm now pays an extra $6,000 a week.

Brew Markets · Businessweek · Axios Markets · Snacks · 1 min

3 of 10

Who pays for the AI build-out?

Columbia's Stijn Van Nieuwerburgh pegs AI infrastructure spending at $10.3 trillion over 2025–2032, and says it needs AI spending near 9% of GDP by 2032 to pay off. Amazon may park about $8B of Nvidia chips in an investor-funded vehicle and lease them back, and Broadcom is financing up to $42B of chip leases for Anthropic.

Brew Markets · Finks Daily · Semafor Business · 1 min

2 of 10

Wall Street wants to let you into private markets

The SEC proposed letting retail clients pay performance fees and loosening interval-fund rules. Brew Markets calls it the "casinofication" of investing. Money Stuff's Matt Levine says it's really about fees, because private equity needs retail money as institutions pull back. A day later, Blue Owl again limited withdrawals from two private-credit funds.

Money Stuff · Brew Markets · 1 min

2 of 10

Banks: a squeeze or a setup?

Finks: the Fed's September hike squeezed margins, and the KBE bank ETF sits about 12% below its August peak at about 10x earnings. EntryPoint: when banks trade 13% below their high while the S&P is within 2% of its record, three-month returns have historically been above average.

Finks Daily · EntryPoint · 30 sec

WHAT RETAIL TRADERS ACTUALLY DID

SOLD	Thursday's photonics rally. Robinhood traders dumped Coherent and Fabrinet on heavy volume. EntryPoint
BOUGHT	Long-term Treasuries. The iShares 20+ Year Treasury ETF had its biggest inflows ever, per JPMorgan's retail tracking. The Daily Upside · EntryPoint
TRIED	AI trading agents. More than 150,000 Robinhood customers have opened agentic AI trading accounts. Brew Markets

THE TAKE WORTH STEALING

Matt Levine on letting you into private markets
Old fee rules pushed star stock-pickers toward big institutions and left regular investors with cheap index funds, which was arguably the better deal all along. If managers can charge retail investors performance fees, you might get better products. You will definitely get the fees.
Paraphrased from Money Stuff, Oct. 1 · Subscribe to Money Stuff \(free\)

TERM OF THE DAY

Mortgage convexity
When rates rise, homeowners stop refinancing, so mortgage bonds stay outstanding longer than expected. Holders hedge that extra interest-rate risk by selling Treasuries, which pushes rates even higher. Barclays calls it the main technical driver of this week's selloff. Context via Axios Markets

THE WEEK AHEAD

Mon 10/5	Services PMI
Tue 10/6	Paramount-Warner Bros. expected to close · Constellation Brands earnings · Fed's Williams and Logan speak
Wed 10/7	Fed minutes from September, 2 p.m. ET · Levi Strauss earnings
Thu 10/8	PepsiCo earnings · jobless claims · Fed's Musalem speaks
Fri 10/9	Delta Air Lines earnings · University of Michigan sentiment
Mid-Oct	Bank earnings season begins · September CPI
Oct 27–28	Fed meeting

Merged from the calendars in EntryPoint, Brew Markets, Businessweek and Finks Daily.

THREE THINGS TO BRING UP AT DINNER

- ♦ The equal-weight S&P 500 is heading for its seventh straight losing week, only the third time ever after 2002 and 2022, while the regular S&P sits within 2% of its record. EntryPoint
- ♦ A former HSBC executive got a lifetime UK ban for "doughnutting" train fares, dodging nearly £6,000 over 700+ trips. The Daily Upside
- ♦ Only six breweries can pour at Oktoberfest. A small Munich brewer has 21,000 of the 35,000 signatures it needs to force a referendum. The Hustle

How was today's issue?

Loved it It was fine Not for me

HOW THIS ISSUE WAS MADE
We read 18 issues from 10 finance newsletters between Thursday morning and Friday's close, merged the stories they share, stripped more than 30 sponsored and promotional blocks, and credited every fact to the newsletter that reported it. Quiet this week: The Diff, Doomberg and Net Interest. Nothing here is investment advice.

Snacks Axios Markets EntryPoint The Daily Upside The Hustle Finks Daily
Brew Markets Money Stuff Businessweek Daily Semafor Business